Admiral John A. Dahlgren, the successor of Admiral Dupont, in command of the South Atlantic fleet, has been for some time chief of the Bureau of Ordnance, and has been thirty-seven years an officer in the navy. He entered the service on the 1st of February, 826. On the naval register for 1863 he ranks enth on the list of Captains, all the rear irals, Admirals, all the Commodores, and en Captains, being above him. The sea rice to his credit is less than that of any er officer in the navy, except three or four. Admiral Dahlgren is a native and citizen of Pennsylvania, from which State he was anated. The invention of the celebrated gun ich bears his name procured for him the inguished position he has occupied in the ordnance Department for several years. He is very fond of gunnery, and has made many covements in arming vessels of war. The N. Y. World says he has never seen a squadron in action, knows nothing practically of blockading duties, and his appointment to the rank of Admiral was universally pronounced derved in view of his great service in the Ordnance Department of the Government; but, as he has been repaid by high rank and an enormous fortune, the naval officers think he and his friends ought to have been satisfied, and that commanders like Rowan, Rhind, Drayton, Worden, Craven, others that might be named, have the first chance for promotion. is natural, perhaps, that this feeling ald prevail in the navy; but it is clear that appointment of Admiral Dahlgren is

GUERILLAS ROUTED .- On Sunday morning Colonel E. H. Murray, of the Third Kentucky Cavalry, stationed at Russellville, having received information that a band of about one hundred guerillas from the direction of Gallain were approaching the Memphis Branch Railroad, between Russellville and Bowling een, despatched Major L. H. Wolfley with men to intercept them. The expedition was completely successful: the rebels were whipped handsomely, several killed, and many

The Clarksville Bulletin says the rains of last week have had a fine effect upon the Cumberland river, which is rapidly swelling, having risen two feet and still coming up at the rate of an inch an hour. The new gunboat General Rosecrans has made its appear ance on the river, for which it was expressly built. It has three screw propellers and two side wheels, and can be trimmed to draw but sixteen inches of water.

The word "raid" is generally written th the quotation marks in British papers, if it was an Americanism. But it is of British origin, and Sir Walter Scott in his Lady of the Lake uses it thus:

Widow and Saxon Maid Long shall lament our raid.

At any rate it has a good Anglo-Saxon root, from "ridan, to ride." At Lebanon, the 20th Kentucky has been on duty for three or four months, under command of Lieut. Colonel Cha. S. Hanson. The Central Kentuckian says he is a genial gentleman and efficient officer, and his regiment is unsurpassed by any in the service in discipline and drill. Major Waller, also, is spoken of as deserving of all commendation.

The Union State Central Committee of Pennsylvania has resolved, that, in the present emergency, while many of the delegates to the Union State Convention are engaged in the military service and cannot be present at the meeting appointed to be held at Pittsburg on the 11th of July, it is deemed expedient to postpone the convention until the 5th of August.

NEW POSTAL ANGEMENTS.—On Weinesday, the 1st of Jag, the amended postage law goes into operation, and business men should make themselves conversant with the changes. One of the most important is in connection with the registration of money letters. Here-press companies will obtain in this department of the national mail service. Every clerk or postmaster handling a registered letter is required to sign his name to the package, so that the letter may be traced throughout its entire route after it is deposited in the postoffic. The receipt given to the receiver of the letter must hereafter be sent to the sender. The fee for registered letters will be increased from five to twenty cents.

Under the old law, newspapers were circulated in the States where published, at half the rates of papers without the States. This distinction is abolished. Weekly papers are still to be sent free to subscribers in the county where printed. Transient newspapers will hereafter be charged two cents each, which will discourage and prevent the sending of millions of single papers that at the old rate of one cent would pass through the mail. Newspaper postage is reduced by the new law to the following rates:

Magazines, not exceeding four ounces in weight, are rated as follows: ni-monthly, per quarter ...

All post-offices where the gross receipts amount to $1,000 or more per annum, letters are to be advertised once a week-at all other offices once a month. All offices advertising weekly will return their unclaimed letters to he Dead Letter Office weekly, and about five weeks after their receipt; smaller offices will eturn their letters monthly.

The franking privilege heretofore granted to costmasters at offices where the gross receipts amounted to less than $200 per annum is abolished, and postmasters are not allowed to frank any letters except those upon official business, which must be so indorsed with the name of the postmaster.

There are some provisions of the law which require additional labor by postmastars and their clerks. Among these are sections 3d and 4th, by which the postmaster is required to keep a record of each day's transactions, showing the entire amount of money received each day, giving separately the amount received for letter postages, for regular newspapers, for box rents, &c., &c.

A scout returned to Clarksville from Harpeth on Thursday night, reporting two prisoners to Col. Bruce at headquarters. The Bulletin says the country in the vicinity of the shoals was thoroughly scoured, the one hundred men dividing into four squads of twenty-five, and each party operating in a different direction. The object of the scout was to capture, if possible, Allbright and his thiev-Federal cavalry in the vicinity, secreted themselves in the thick forests, and our troops were unable to ferret out their hiding place. The sociates never, under any circumstances, to mere sailor, to overcome them. For these reasons we are disposed to look with favor upon this appointment, and to await his fair trial for its justification. If Admiral Dahlgren takes Charleston, it will show that he not only knows how to make guns but how the first limb of the first tree. Acknowledging no government, belonging to no regular service, they are but a gang of lawless, thieving desperadoes, and are entitled to give expression by vote, guilty or not guilty. Box Mountain Springs, Ky., May 20, 1863. To the Editors of the Louisville Journal: GENTLEMEN: In 1850, when the organic law of Kentucky was about to be submitted to a convention of the people of Kentucky through their delegates, there were two candidates in this county to represent this county (Hopkins), and one to be elected, one of whom was then an able debater of my own political party, but was in favor of adopting in the Constitution what was termed an open clause upon the subject of slavery, thereby making it possible in all time to come to keep up an excitement in the State on the subject of emprejuation to avoid which I appounded emancipation, to avoid which I announced myself a candidate, not with an idea of being elected, but a belief that it would defeat the election of the gentleman in favor of that open clause (as it did).

And in 1863, I am sorry to say that we find not only the Constitution and laws of Kentucky violated by the rebellion of some of the Southern States, but we find in our own Kentucky a part of her citizens, sword in hand, joined in an unholy and unnatural league, not only to destroy the Constitution and laws of Kentucky, but the Constitution and laws of the United States, and thereby destroy the best and freest government in the world, which has cost us the blood and treasure of our fathers, at the end of a seven years' war; and of a nation, but a mere conglomeration of in-erests, to be dissolved at the will and pleasure f any portion or number of the States; and, being of opinion that many of my friends and neighbors have been seduced into this rebel-lion by a set of office-seekers and demagogues, y falsely representing the real interest of centucky and the Southern States by show

I therefore wish you to announce me a can-didate for the Senate, to represent the coun-ties of Hopkins, Webster, and Union in the ing that I endorse the proceedings of the Convention held at Louisville on the 18th March, 1863; and I do not wish to get the vote of any vention field a solution field a solutio

IN THE REAR OF VICKSBURG, Miss., June 19, 1863.

Three deserters were yesterday taken by our pickets on the extreme left, near Warrenton, and as they expressed themselves pretty freely concerning Jeff's bogus confederacy, I append the substance of their remarks as near as memory serves me. They were conscripted in Northern Georgia and have served so far Northern Georgia, and have served so far against their own free will, and are far from being satisfied with the treatment they have since received. Having expressed a desire to take the oath of allegiance, they were con-ducted to the Provost Marshal and gratified. The next step they desired to take was to join our army, which was referred to higher au-

Their statement of matters and things was as follows:
"When Porter commenced bombarding the city, and our works so hot on the 8th, and kept it up for so long, he did us more harm than has ever been done before or since. At that time there were a great many women and children in the city, still the bigger part were in caves, and much crowded for want of room. The city authorities and military together had ordered some new caves dug, and some had just been completed, when them cussed bombshells commenced drapping down! A little after daylight seven women and five children was a seven women and seven the children women and seven the children was a seven women and seven the children was a seven women and seven women w

No force was used, as it was deemed hazardous to use coercive measures under the circumstances. Had you continued the bombardment six hours longer, General Pemberton would have sur-

"Your field batteries did us considerable injury at first, but we were soon sent into trenches and close under the hills in the rear of our earthworks, where we seldom lost a man, except by the mortar shells. They are hell!—and no mistake, and you can't get out of their way unless you crawl into a hole like a ground-

In regard to rations, they could give no definite knowledge of the quantity on hands, but supposed it was small, as they did not get full rations. They had never been on less than half-rations since Vicksburg was invested. Our field batteries had killed about half of their stock, leaving a horrible stench for a few days, as we kept up such a constant firing they could not police their camps nor the city either. They say that the general impression in Vicksburg is, that if Gen. Grant don't take the city passed out and in the lines several times since our occupation. Taking everything into consideration, their report is entitled to credence. While giving your readers a portion of the news items from this locality, I much regret to report the absence of Major-General John A. McClernand. He was relieved from duty yesterday by General Grant, and ordered to report to the Secretary of War. He took his departure this morning. He leaves a host of friends in the 13th corps, and it is as yet a mystery why and on what grounds he was so suddenly deprived of his command. Many murmurs are heard, while some are highly indignant. The quessing ones give as a reason that his congratulatory order (No. 72 of date May 25, 1863) contained something not down in the Revised Army Regulations! It has doubtless reached your readers long ere this, and they can form their own opinions on that point God forbid that General McClernand shall be obliged to pass through the gauntlet of a United States military tribunal (vide Buell vs U.S.) It would only take eight or nine months to investigate one General Order. I would in this case very respectfully suggest that the soldiers in his late command be per-

[For the Louisville Journal.] To the Voters of Jefferson County: In accordance with the expressed wish of a number of my fellow-citizens, I announce myself a candidate to represent you in the ower tranch of the next General Assemby of the Commonwealth of Kentucky.

My political principles are embraced in the "Union, the Constitution, and the enforcement

I endorse the Resolutions on Federal Relations adopted by the last Legislature of our State, and adopted and endorsed by the Louisville Convention of the 18th of March last. I believe these resolutions set forth clearly and in an unmistakable manner the duty of the conservative citizens in the present crisis. Standing upon them, we can give an unwavering support to the cause of the Union and the Constitution, at the same time en'ering a firm but respectful protest to the unwarrantable assumptions of power by those who are temporarily in possession of the reins of government. We should, however, be very careful that in entering our protest we do not surrender the life of our State and the liberty of our people tato the hands of the armed enemy of our country. Our highest duty as citizens and patriots calls upon us to use every legitimate means in our power to suppress the existing rebellion and restore the dethroned supremacy of the Constitution, thereby enaling us once more to have a united people, owing at the same shrine of freedom, worshipping at the same altar of liberty. contest in which we are now engaged is of the mightiest import to us all at the present time, as well as to generations yet to come.

For if this proud offspring of genius, this unsurpassed conception of the human mind—the temple of liberty in which we dwell—must go down, and the glory of our country depart forever, liberty will receive a blow from which perhaps it may never recover. Every glorious memory of the past, every bright here.

pernaps it may never recover. Every glorious memory of the past, every bright hope of the future, as well as the tearful wishes of the down trodden millions of the Old World, call upon you to preserve your Constitution from destruction and your government from ruin.

And if there ever was a time in which men should be partiotic, this is the hour. With an armed force on the one side threatening to armed force on the one side threatening to submerge beneath the angry waves of rebel-lion all that we cherish and hold dear; on the other men driven by mad fanaticism to permit the destruction of their government rather than its restoration upon the basis of the Con-stitution as it is. It is now for the conserva-tive element to become the preserver of our country by gathering around the Constitution sustaining the proud emblem of her national ity in the field, and crushing by the sure and legitimate means of the ballot-box her enemies at home-thus surely hastening the day when in seeing the flag of our country waving in the triumph of its own proud splendor over a reunited people, enjoying the blessings of a

Madame Lagrange, not long ago, had the honor of disturbing the surface of fashionable society in Madrid. A lady of high position gave a ball and sent an invitation to the singer named. According to some authorities, this raised a tempest in the first circles of Spanish society. As, however, the Queen did not think herself compromised by being in the same room with the singer, there followed a revulsion in the popular sentiment and shells commenced drapping after daylight seven women and five children were in the street going to a new care, when one of them dog-gone bombshells fell into their midst—bursted, and the whole twelve were instantly killed! NAVY DEPARTMENT, June 27. A gallant and distinguished naval hero is lost to the country. The hero of Fort Henry and Fort Donelson; the daving and indomitable spirit that created and led to successive victories the Mississippi flotilla; the heroic Christian sailor, who, in the China seas and interior rivers of the country, sustained with unfaltering fidelity and devotion the honor of our flag and the cause of the Union.

Rear Admiral A. Hull Foote is no more. He was on his way to take command of the South Atlantic blockading squadron, a position to which he had been recently assigned and in the duties of which were combined the earnest energies and vigorous movements of a mind of no ordinary character. He was suddenly prostrated by disease, and, after a brief illness, breathed his last at the Astor House, New York, on the evening of the 26th

Among the noble and honored dead whose names added lustre to our naval renown and must ever adorn our national annals, few will stand more pre-eminent than that of the gallant and self-sacrificing Christian soldier and gentleman whose loss we now deplore, appreciating his virtues and his services a grateful country had bestowed upon him while living its willing honors and will mourn his death. Therefore, as a mark of respect, it is ordered that the flags of the several navy yards, naval te-guns be fired at meridian on the day after Some thirty-four years ago a young man the receipt of this order.

TUESDAY, JUNE 30, 1863.

We are very unwilling to complain of We do not doubt the strong wish of the Prespossible, and it must be a far greater pleasure to approve than to censure his acts. But great and palpable errors of commission and omission should not, we think, be passed by, purebuked and unnoticed. A deplorable error, in our opinion, has been the utter neglect of the War Department to adopt a system for keeping our armies full by replacing the tens of thousands of troops lost to the service by all the casualties of war and disease, and the other tens of thousands whose periods of refirement from the service by the expiration of their terms of enlistment have of course been foreknown from the first. There seems to have been no provision for the fu- countrymen be of good cheer. ture at all. An authoritative declaration was made at Washington in the spring of last year that we had men in abundance already in Potemac at his own request and Gen. George the field, enough to subdue the rebellion, and, G. Meade assumes the position. McClellan as a consequence, the work of recruiting, which at that moment was making vigorous | Maryland and Pennsylvania, and Hooker is progress everywhere, was brought immediately to a close, leaving our armies to dwindle away, as all armies ever will and must, while at the same time the rebel authorities were reinforcing their hosts in the field, filling up and keeping up all their regiments and origades and divisions to the highest possible point of numerical strength, and even increasng them by conscription after conscription. Yes, we suddenly relaxed our exertions at the moment when the rebels were redoubling

To all rational minds, there appeared to be a certainty then that a large supply of men in addition to what we had would be needed for the campaign of last summer, and surely they should have been raised as soon as practicable in order that they might be thoroughly disciplined in anticipation of the requirement of their actual services. No doubt the War Department, in the light of the progress of events, very soon saw the magnitude of the error committed, but there was no haste to repair it, and

But campaign and lesson shared pretty much humiliation in again putting McClellau in the same fate. A call of nine months' men was forced, and, as the exact date of their retirement from service was known, we all of us must of course have supposed that provision would be made, or at least that every exertion would be put forth to make provision, to prevent their return to their homes from creating a void in our armies at a crisis which was universally expected to be an eventful one in the war. The nine months' men are leaving the service now, leaving rapidly by the expiration of their terms, and yet we find that their places are not supplied. Hundreds of newspapers, those friendly and those not friendly to the Administration, have repeatedly and loudly called the attention of the nation and the Government to the rapid approach of the period of the withdrawal of the nine months' men, but their calls have seemed to be unheeded or unheard at Washington.

No doubt Congress was inexcusable in not sooner passing an enrolment law of some description, yet the present law, passed on the 2d of last March, might and would, with the exercise of due energy, have been executed before the close of April. But even the Provost Marshals were not appointed until late in May, for, as a Cincinnati paper says, "politicians were to be consulted, and appointments made to please them, when there were enough wounded and disabled officers, in every State, to fill the places, and who could have been designated and set to work by the 10th of March." We are assured that it has been found from actual experience that the enrolment of any district where there is no mob opposition requires, under the action of industrious and determined officers, not more than one pleted in a few days. But now we are at the on the night of that day, having called, five ed to the army a single man. We are well sand men, with a promise, in the event of suced to the army a single man.
